

25 May 2015

Run No. 2361 "The ~~Four~~ 2 Musketeers Run" – Official Version edited by Scruffy*

Editor's note: pre-report submitted by Tinkerbelle some four days before the actual run*

Hares = Snappy Tom, Little Arseplay (LAP) & Divot & Pushup

Venue = Archive's Beer Boutique (~~Meet at Rear Entry?~~), Boundary Street, West End

Once upon a time there were ~~four~~ two musk oxen that became best friends. They did everything together. When it came time for them to get new harnesses, they all went to the tack shop together to be fitted. Alas, one of the musk oxen, Snappy Tom Divot, wasn't too sure of foot and tripped inside the tack shop, stumbling over the work bench and then falling forward, fatally impaling him upon a long, sharp device for punching holes in the leather straps. Grief-stricken, the ~~three~~ surviving friends LAP huddled ~~together~~ by himself, tears streaming down ~~their~~ his furry faces. The shop owner was deeply touched by this display of friendship and loyalty and said, "I can see from now on the motto for the ~~three~~ one musk in tears shall be one for awl and awl for one!"

"Never fear quarrels, but seek hazardous adventures." (Quote: Musketeers)

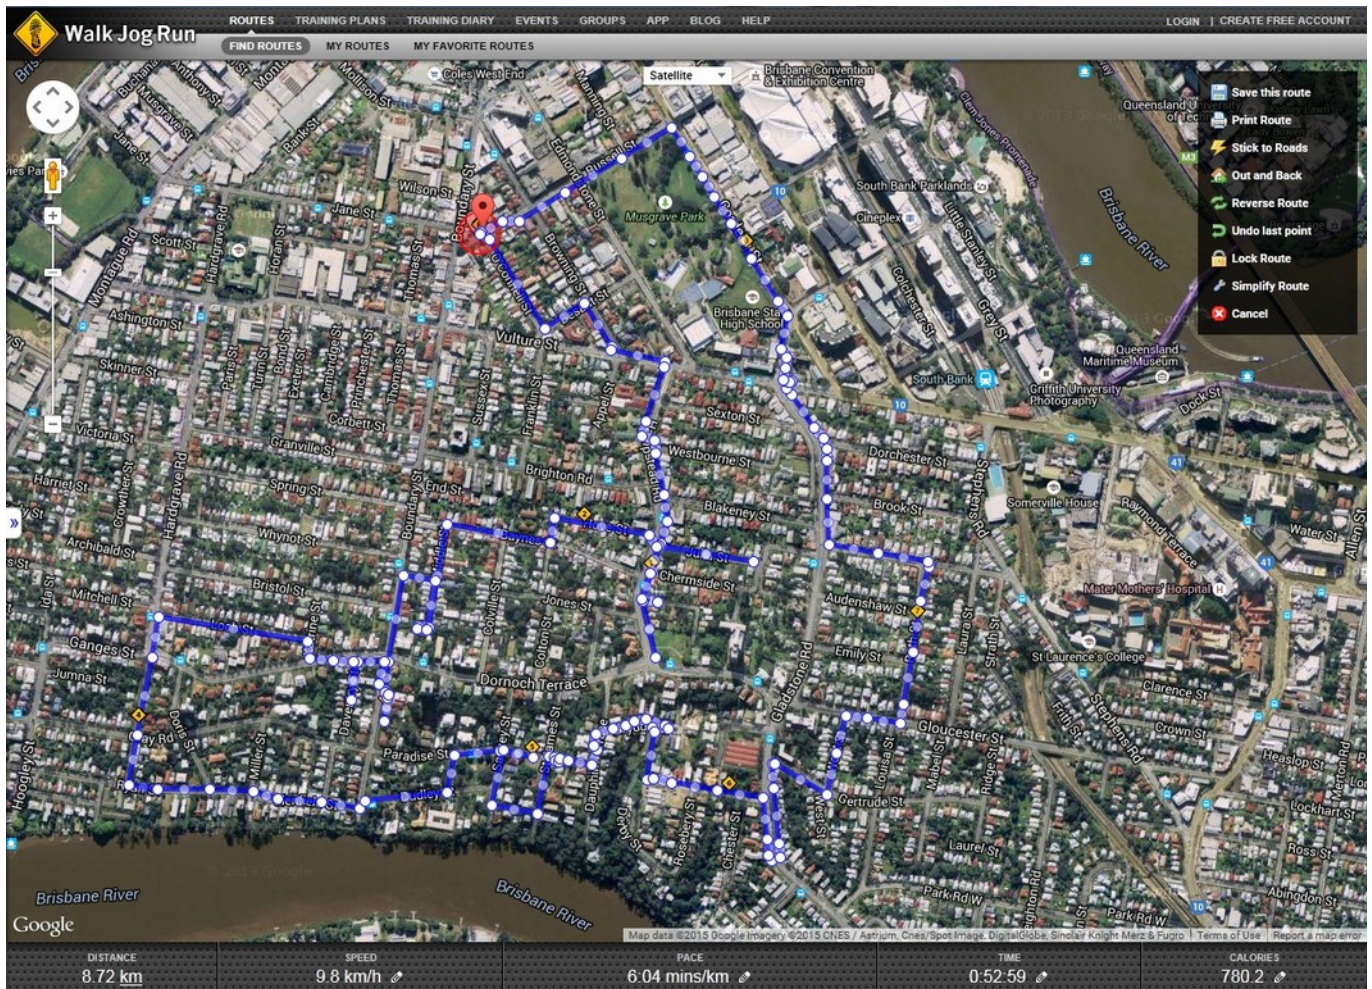

What type of run do you get when you marry up Snappy Tom, LAP and Divot & Pushup? Now there's ugly offspring!

The venue was the Archive Bar, apparently owned by Anchovy's ex. Being close to town, numbers of hashmen were up, but there was a lot of pre-run grumbling about the lack of parking. There was one visitor – Where's the Beef Vomit. Splat Octapussy looked at home in West End, blending in with the hipsters, with his man-knot and beard. Grand Master XXXX called the circle at precisely 6:15pm. Snappy Divot explained that it was going to be Run of The Year, short, flat, well-marked, with no hills, set on chalk / paper / flowers (obviously going through some poor sucker's garden)!

Being such a short run, it was great to see an number of the part-time walkers/runners stepping up to run this night; and a big pack of ~~twenty-three~~ 12 (including Irish Joke, F*ckNut, Handj*b, Vaso, Layup and Monty) headed off up Russell Street. The initial half of the run was set by Snappy/LAP/Divot and had your typical Front Running Bastards – Optus, JC, Splat, Bugs and Royal Screw, with Tinkerbelle running up check-backs and Scruffy telling him to "try to keep up" when he had to double back! Mid-pack had Craft, Turbo, Tweety, Miles O'Toole and XXXX. We hit the Brisbane River with Anchovy, Luftwaffe, Multiple Choice and Verbal Diarrhoea still in sight. Unfortunately F*cknut threw a fetlock and was promptly shot by Baron von Layup. We found the first Re-Group, signalling the start of Push-Up's half of the run....Edit note: there was only 1 RG.

~~We knew we were in trouble when we crossed the Green Bridge over the Brisbane River. After negotiating the hills of St Lucia (it was here that Irish finally succumbed to his pneumonia and collapsed in a wheezing heap and was promptly shot by Baron von Layup), to the second Re-Group in Toowong. Monty was heard to say "Fark this!" as he headed for the Royal Exchange Hotel. Vaso and Layup joined him.~~

~~The rest of the run was a bit of a blur, passing through Anzac Park, across the Centenary Highway, and into the lantana on Mount Goot tha, with runners dropping like flies along the way. 26 km and five Re-Groups later, we got back at 9:30pm. The walkers were clearly pissed off by the lack of hash beer, subsequent to the untimely demise of F*cknut., but we managed to lever the boot of his car open. Edit note: refer to run route.~~

GM XXXX, (Edit note: who returned home 25 minutes after allotted run time) hastily called a circle with the few remaining returned hashmen. With Swami Screw's help, Pushup LAP was immediately iced for the long run with poor markings. Vaso and Anchovy were iced for rigging the recent Hash Golf tournament as was Bugs for not correctly recording his team's score and losing the match. And naturally Luftwaffe turned the tables of Multiple Choice with a charge of letting his unlicensed daughter prang his wife's car also landed on the ice after picking up a lady in the Valley, only find out later that she was a "He" (how does he do it, every week?). But Sh!t of the Week went to Snappy Tom LAP for telling the hashmen that they had to "enter the back door" for this run (Rule One violation) having a Radar like run, too long and questionable markings.

The On-On in the Archive bar was poorly well attended, due to the late time and the loss of so many hashmen on the run, with Tinkerbelle whinging incessantly about having to pay $15 for some yuppie beer that he couldn't pronounce the name of, and which tasted like camel piss.

SOW = Snappy Tom.LAP

Run 5 / 10 (run a bit short by Pushup's usual standards) too long, questionable markings and one RG.
 Circle 7 / 10 – poor acoustics made it hard for old f*rts to hear and Multiple Choice only registered 7 'f#*ks'.
 Food 7 / 10 – looked good

PS. extract of email exchanges on 26 May 2015 between co-hare Divot and Tinkerbelle (run route data supplier) who provide a scientific - highly thought provoking post-run analysis:

Tinkerbelle: Here's where the run went last night!
Divot: That's where it should have gone!!

Tinkerbell: Actually a pretty interesting run; the way it kept turning in the opposite direction from where we thought we should be going.... Kept us guessing! A lot of runs are just a big anticlockwise loop, but this kept turning right, when we thought we should be turning left!!!

Edit note to LAP: Look what happens when you set a run other than anticlockwise...you lose most of the runners!!!

On on

Tinkerbell Scruffy Edit note: the official appointed scribe