

Run Report Salisbury Hotel 13 February 2017

Hares-Miles O'Tool and Little Arseplay

On arrival at the carpark, only saw a trickle of Hashmen with worried looks towards the sky. The BOM was not showing a pleasing picture-red and black bits heading our way! Virgin bolted back to his house under cover. Optimism prevailed by the regulars-"it's going north!" " No, it's going towards the Gold Coast!!" A couple more turned up as the big drops started falling-what's that green stuff, says Tweety?

Suddenly, he's vanished in the polished Beema-I jumped in the car to wait the onslaught –a phone call –it was Tweety-"hey JC, there's a motel out the back of the pub with undercover car parks- as the sky lit up with bolt lightening, I shot out the back to avoid the hail-fortunately, no hail and after the rain subsided, I ventured back to the carpark to witness a sad sight!!

It was the Hares, Miles and Arseplay coming down from the mountains –drenched, totally stuffed and carrying the wet remnants of chalk and flower. They seemed to be congratulating themselves for setting the run, toasting each other with German beer cans ,as I peered through the windscreenwipers-poor bastards as the run was later declared a washout!

A few of us decided to do "a run" but not Miles and Arseplay"s run-so no "tick" on Crafts sheet for haring the run-don't you feel sorry for them?

Our run comprised XXXX, Tinker, Craft, Bugs and JC- we headed up the mountain into the bush even after Miles said “don’t go into the mountain because of the lightening” –he was right. There was a lot more lightening even after the rain had gone, which seemed to excite Tinker as he found more trails leading us to nowhere –somehow and don’t know how, we managed to find some lights in the distance (houses) which led us home to the pub to find a reasonable crowd.

Circle was well attended even though most had opted for the pub at the start-Barebum was nominated for SOTW for singing some Barry Manilow song to Scruffy at the previous Onon at Clayfield, but Bugs took the stand for him as Barebum was MIA-Bugs being the closest lookalike.

Snappy got nominated as the Hare last week by Scruffy for waiting an hour and a half to get served his meal at the Onon-you don’t do that to the Hash cash, Snappy! So, Snappy got SOTW.

Onon-average-not cheap beer, slow service (again) for the food-but good to be out of the rain
