

BHHH run report Moreshit Run – Paddo Tavern

To start with what do you do when there is very little to write about? Waffle on to mesmerize your readers in to believing it is a good report. Trouble is this requires journalistic skills, so here goes.

Well here we were in for another Moreshit Run. The circle were informed by the Hares that there “was only one hill” etc. etc. The usual lies one can expect from these two doubtful characters, Mortein and ShitBags.

Off we went, still recovering from my bike accident debacle I had no chance of a short run here and there, so joined the majority group of walkers. I accompanied R. Screw for a while; he gave me a run down on his recent trip to Old Blighty, where he walked the Yorkshire Dales. Being a Pommy Bastard, he fitted in perfectly. GM Tweety was in my group for a while; he talked about something I cannot recall what, probably his last flight piloting a plane somewhere.

The trail wound its way up and down steep hills in the back streets of Paddo in a westerly direction towards Rosalie. It was reasonably well marked, but as a backup JC had a map. Trouble was he was the wrong guy to give it to. Previously a hash “Front Runner” he has graduated to a “Front Walker”, so he was there for directions for about half way and after that I did not see him again. I, with a couple of others got a bit lost around back of Rosalie and so I decided to take a short cut. home alone along Given Terrace. Trouble was being a bit disoriented, it turned out to be a long cut when arrived, and the pack had already drank most of the beer. I managed to get the last full strength XXXX; there was plenty of half strength left – message to brew master??

GM Tweety called the circle to order and after a few announcements, Optus gave the run a good wrap, not sure who said what about the walk. Then it was over to the stand in Monk Pushup. Barebum was called up on some weak trumped up charge he sat on ice for a moment, then another weak charge on some other hapless victim, before the Dynamic Duo, Luftwaffe and Multiple came on for the main act. Apparently Multiple chastised some passenger on his BCC bus who complained to BCC and Multiple was called up by Human Resources for “counselling.” Trouble was Multiple ended up controlling the interview and the poor counselor ended up getting nowhere. I imagine Multiples file would be stamped “Do not Counsel – waste of Time”

It was the on to the Paddo, where I was amazed to find the steals were at the usual pub rate of $15. But I won't comment on the drink prices, for which the Paddo is famously at the top of the range.

Twin Tub made a cameo appearance with his new knees. He informed me that he is still in extreme pain, best of luck with your recovery TT.

In all a well-planned run and on on.

Brengun

Run – 7/10 Optus reckons it was OK

Walk – 6/10 not quite as well marked as usual and JC disappeared

Circle – 8/10 good location and the main act was entertaining

Meal – 7/10 except for pricey drinks

Brengun